

Think About It!

---

Newton's Cradle:

Why is it that when two balls are released from one side that are not attached, two balls are released from the other side but when two balls that are glued together as one are released from one side only one ball is released from the other side?

